Lawrence Public Schools	Lawrence Public Schools believes that the fundamental unit of change in education reform is the school, not the district. In 2011, we were designated as being chronically underperforming. The Commissioner of Education appointed a receiver, who was charged with meaningfully improving—and sustaining—academic achievement in his schools. While the receiver could have imposed more top-down and uniform policies to manage schools, instead, he chose a different path. In 2012, we began a turnaround in which educators used increased autonomy to lead their schools to success. The central office worked in service of the schools, rather than in management of the schools. That change paved the way for progress and improvement.	http://www.educate-lawrence.com	Teachers - ALL subjects/grade levels, full-time/part-time/temporary	Education
